Runyon Holds Pipgras Star Of Yanks' Win Over Pirates

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1927.)
FORBES FIELD, PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6.—That strange human traffic of the modern day...

A chattel of the modern day slave trade of sports, a pitching pawn of the New York Yankees, the big Mad-Westerner was shut out about the back woods of the pastime at the whim of his owners for four or five years.

CAME INTO OWN

But this afternoon George Pipgras came into his big league own, when he held the sluggers of the Pittsburgh Pirates in the hollow of his greasy old glove, a beloved relic of Atlanta, and St. Paul, and the other towns of his baseball service.

Speed he fed 'em, and then more speed—blinding speed that stopped the champions of the National League with seven hits, no two of which were made in any one inning, while the Yankees were taking the second game of the series.

ASSASSINATION OF GENERAL IS JINGO TORCH

Martial Law Declared, Satisfaction Asked; Reward Offered

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 6.—Incensed by the assassination of Brigadier General Kovachevitch at Ispit, the Jugo-Slavs are clamoring for war with Bulgaria.

General Kovachevitch was shot down from behind and his assassin made their escape from the scene, but General Jichich, in command of the border troops, reported tonight that two of the murderers had been captured.

Two military councils were held in the course of the day and both of them proclaimed martial law in this district, continuous to Bulgaria. In the meantime a note touched in preliminary language has been prepared for dispatch to Paris, demanding guarantee for the future and satisfaction for the past misdeeds of the Comitatists (irregulars).

The assassination of Brigadier General Kovachevitch, reported to be one of the ablest strategists in the Serbian army at Ispit, Jugo-Slavia, has caused a wave of tremendous excitement to sweep Belgrade.

DEMAND WAR

Alleging constant Bulgarian provocation, individual newspapers are clamoring for war.

General Kovachevitch, who lived at the end of a narrow lane and just arrived at the door of his home, accompanied by a priest and a friend named Javornich, when three shots were fired, killed the general's head and the third imbedded itself in his heart, killing the general on the spot.

LEFT BOMB

The assassins stood fired upon away in a church central at the end of the lane. On the spot where they stood they left a bomb, alleged to be of Bulgarian origin, with its fuse lighted, to cover their retreat.

General Kovachevitch was one of Serbia's most noted soldiers. He founded a troop of Legionnaires during the war for service abroad. In 1903 he participated in the revolt in which King Alexander and Queen Draga of Serbia were assassinated. He also fought in the Turkish Bulgarian wars and was in prison. He had been in command of the Twenty-first Infantry regiment at Skopje lately. Jukoslavia has offered a reward of 100,000 dinars (roughly $1,750) for the arrest of the assassins. It is believed that they are connected with all the recent outrages.

Official Paper Of The City Of Richmond, California

FRIDAY, OCT. 7, 1927.

"Everybody loves the farmer" says an editorial caption in the New York Times. And the farmer is slowly coming to realize that one of the things the matter with him is that he has always been loved to death by the politicians.

You don't often hear the expression "all wool and a yard wide" nowadays. In the first place they don't wear wool anymore and then the average skirt is only about a half yard wide, anyhow.

It is predicted that the coming meeting of the League of Nations will be a lively affair. Well, that's something.

Lord Cecil, the Big League of Nations man from Great Britain seems to have found that now is the winter of his discontent.

Will all American embassies abroad now have a room set apart for trans-Atlantic aviators?—Boston Globe.

These conferences at Geneva are rapidly assuming the importance of contests between the baseball teams in the second division.

If Mussolini had been born a baseball player instead of a politician he would doubtless be giving Babe Ruth a real run for his money.

According to reports, the summer resort hotel keepers are complaining of poor business this summer. But we know a lot of folks who won't worry a great deal over this.

A strike of operators closed all of the Chicago movie theatres recently. But more excitement would probably be caused if all the bootleggers should go on a vacation.

Over $150,000 worth of fake safety razor blades were seized the other day in New Jersey. Our barber tell us that all safety razor blades are fakes.

We are now going to forgive the fellows who borrowed money off us when we were younger and less experienced. Maybe they were victims of amnesia.

How To Earn Money!

I would like to get some work to do at home. I have a little daughter 3 years old and cannot leave home to do outside work. I would like to take care of a child or two during the day or in the evenings.

Mrs. G. Inquire among your neighbors and find out if there are not some children whose mothers would be glad to have you take care of their child. The fact that you are taking care of your own child would give assurance that other kiddies would be well cared for, and there are undoubtedly a number of mothers who would be glad to take advantage of an opportunity such as you offer.

I need to earn money. I tried making silk flowers at home and it didn't pay. The only thing I can do well is to wash and iron fancy things, such as fine linens, curtains, spreads and lingerie. How would you advise me to go about getting such work, ANNIE T. You might make your services known by having a nice little card printed with your name and address, stating exactly the kind of work you wish to do and distributing these cards among the people in your neighborhood. And send letters to the tenants in the large apartment houses near you.

I would like to teach English to Spanish girls in the evenings. I work in an office during the day. How long should each lesson last and what would you consider a fair charge? HILDA.

Each lesson should not last longer than an hour. After that your pupils' interest is likely to wane. For class lessons 50c for each pupil would be a fair charge. You may feel that this figure is too low, but in basing your charge you will have to take into consideration the financial condition of prospective pupils. You must take into consideration also the fact that all of the evening free schools are now in session.

Mrs. Sarah Spence will answer all questions on "How to Earn Money at Home." Address her care of this paper.

Paris has created a delightful new turban. It is made of supple velours—twisted and turned, trimmed with shaded braided ribbon and is worn so that just one eye is seen.

New pajamas feature new necklines. A pretty pajama ensemble displays tailored treatment in the vestee effect on blouse. Another attractive suit has diagonal neck-line with piping and embroidery.

A novel bracelet is made of carved sections of wood mounted in metal and is aptly named "Knock on Wood." It is supposed to be "good luck" bracelet.

A dainty complement to the summer costume is the choker of graduated real rose quartz, lapis and carnelian; also the novelty choker of crystal combined with colored stones.

A pretty sweater outfit designed for autumn sports wear has a jumper of red tulle with black dots and black border trimmings. The skirt is plain red, plaited at either side.

Pupil: Aw! I hurried so fast that I forgot to make one up.

What Your FACE TELLS

©c. 1927- by Betty Morrison PSYD.

What a fascinating game it is to look at the curves and the development of man's forehead and see what thoughts have been written there.

The size and proportion of the forehead indicate the quality and degree of intellectuality with which an individual is endowed.

If there is excessive development of the forehead at the eyebrows, as in this illustration, it is in indication of keen perceptive power. This is the forehead of the scientist, who gathers facts from his general observation or from experimental work which requires close application to details.

He sees better than he thinks. He is practical and quick minded. He has good judgment of size, form, weight, measurer, etc. He is interested in facts, but cares little for theories. In the development of the human race this form of forehead was evolved with blondness.

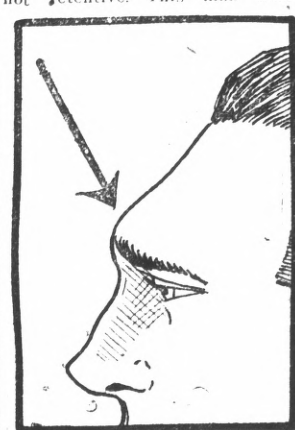

It has been proved by experiments in observation that brains with predominant perceptive development have a power of observation many times greater than that of the average man.

One Look Gets All!

Two individuals of opposite development can look into a show window. The keen observer will miss nothing down to minute details. The other, whose brain is of less perceptive, but more reflective development, will see possibly half the number of objects displayed in the window, missing by fifty per cent the accuracy of the man whose predominant development of the brain is perceptive.

The type of forehead shown in the illustration belongs to the man whose memory is not retentive. He forgets numbers and dates and may not mail his wife's letters many days after her warning.

This man is a wizard at working puzzles, playing cards and decisions quickly. He has a quick way of speaking and is tactless to a slight degree, which sometimes makes enemies.

Keen Minded

He has the ability to formulate plans and the power to put them into practice. He has great persistence and enthusiasm, which is a big asset in business. A person with this brain development is sharp witted and easily grasps a new idea.

He can quickly adapt himself to any circumstance; this ability is very valuable in both business and social life.

He makes friends on short acquaintance, but also loses them quickly.

One who acts on the spur of the moment, as does this type, is sometimes let into unhappy difficulties. But when this happens, he is the good sport who seldom complains, accepting life patiently.

This predominant development of the brows indicates leadership, energy and executive ability.

YOUR MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

By Patricia Lee

Due to poor business it was necessary for my company to cut down expenses and because I was married they reduced me rather than discharge me. I am afraid I can't make my wife understand. She has always had the very best of everything and is pretty badly spoiled. Besides I would hate for her to know about this. But if we cut expenses to the quick and even then I am not sure we can make a go of things. We will have to give up our comfortable apartment and all the luxuries to which we have been accustomed. I am puzzled as to whether I should tell my wife or if I should let matters drift and hope for something to turn up. I have a little money saved, but there's not enough to last long. What do you advise.

In my opinion frankness is the best and only policy in a case such as yours. In fact, it is too much to say that your future peace of mind depends upon such a policy. In keeping this from your wife you are not being fair to her. Explain the situation to her just as it is. If she is a good sport—and most wives are, if given an opportunity to show their colors—she will rise to the situation and help you work out a plan for the future. You would be foolish to go into your savings and tell her that you are not sure you can make a go of things. We will have to give up our comfortable apartment and all the luxuries to which we have been accustomed. I am puzzled as to whether I should tell my wife or if I should let matters drift and hope for something to turn up. I have a little money saved, but there's not enough to last long. What do you advise.

Here is another first year problem. To the seasoned married couple who has weathered many a storm, the first year problems may sound trivial, but to the young couple, passing through this period of adjustment, they are quite as serious, quite as heart-breaking, as the bigger problems which come up later.

SAYS THE WOMAN

Dear Patricia Lee:

It is right for a husband who constantly works overtime and whose wife goes to business to keep his overtime and never take his wife out. I am 19 and married four months and am still in love with my husband, but I am beginning to feel disappointed in him. When I ask him to take me to a show, he just says "Wait until we can afford it." He says he is laying money aside for a home but I doubt it. I am almost having a nervous breakdown from loneliness. Now I get plenty of invitations to go out, but I know if I accepted any of them my husband would begin going out with some one else. Do you think it would help things if I went out once or twice and made him jealous? He seems to think I could not go.

WILDA W.

No, Wilda, your husband doesn't think you couldn't. He thinks you wouldn't. That's how much confidence he has in you. Surely up to you to live up to it. Surely you don't want to go around looking for trouble. That's just what you would be doing if you tried to arouse his jealousy by going out with others. I don't need to tell you that this is the surest way in the world to make a farce of your marriage. Apparently you don't realize how happy you really should be that you have a husband to make a home for you. Many of the letters I receive are from women who complain because their husbands don't want to work. Try to forget about nervous breakdowns and loneliness. There are many things that you can do to keep you happy and contented. There is no reason in the world why you two cannot be supremely happy if you but make an earnest effort to please each other.

THE FIRST AUTO, with Barney Oldfield and Patsy Ruth Miller is a Warner Bros. production of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
In 1896 Bob, son of Hank Armstrong, a horse fancier, is secretly inventing gasoline engines and openly courting Rose Robbins. Hank, discovering Bob's interest in automobiles, horsechips him. Rose intervenes but Bob leaves home. She promises a grip on him. Steve Bentley proposes to Rose and is refused. Bob returns as an automobile racer. In revenge Steve suggests to Hank, who does not know that the "Red Demon" racer is his son, that sulphur in the gas tank will cause an explosion. That night Hank follows Steve's suggestion. All the town gathers to see Bob race.

"No No!" he shrieked. "We must not be too late."

He rushed past the girl blindly groping for some means, some method whereby he might save his boy—his own son, whom he had so unwittingly set in the very path of danger—even death. He looked about him wildly. Where to turn? What to do? His head reeled. He took a firm grip on himself. He must pull himself together. Do everything in his power to avert the disaster he saw staring him in the face.

"God!" he prayed, silently. "Oh, my God! What shall I do? What shall I do?"

Rose hurried after the man, watching him curiously. She had never expected to see Hank so excited. He was frantic. But she thought his excitement was caused by the desire to see his son win a race, and his frenzy by the anxiety to be there in time so that he might not miss a moment of his boy's triumph.

As if in answer to his prayer Hank turned towards Bright Eyes' stall. There stood the mare placidly gazing on the stirring scene before her. He quickened into action, as he had in the old days when he faced a crisis.

"Bright Eyes will take us," he called to Rose. "and she'll run of the race of her life!"

Rose laughed happily. Of course, there was Bright Eyes and the buggy, and with a little hurried driving they should be able to make the race in time. But she had not realized how swiftly the minutes were passing, and that at that moment Bob was making ready to get into his car and start his perhaps fatal race.

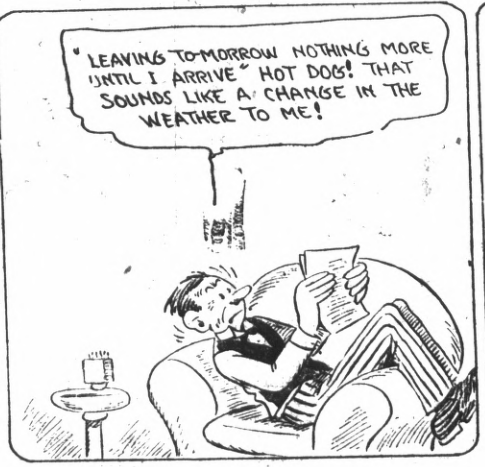

But Hank was opening the stall door, and Bright Eyes stepped out, bending her head to allow the halter to slip over, and taking the bit in her teeth. Hank backed her into the long-ungassed buggy shafts, threw the lines over the buckboard, tightened the girth and jumped in. Rose right behind him. He gathered up the reins and slipped the horse smartly. Out the stable door and into the road they rattled. It was the start of a second race that afternoon against time.

CHAPTER XXII

Bob was gathering speed now, flying round and round the track dizzily. Past the grandstand amid a loud clamor of shrieks and shouts. Round the curve, taking it on two wheels. Straightening out down the stretch. Round the next curve. Past the Judges' stand again. On and on in a mad whirlwind of whizzing wheels and whirling motor. Snell of scorching heat into the long-ungassed buggy shafts, threw the lines over the buckboard, tightened the girth and jumped in. Rose right behind him. He gathered up the reins and slipped the horse smartly. Out the stable door and into the road they rattled. It was the start of a second race that afternoon against time.

Steve lowered his glasses. The strain was over, now, so far as he was concerned. There wasn't a soul who could stop the figure fleeing straight through the arms of destruction. It would only be a matter of minutes—a flash in the span of time. And then—Steve grinned maliciously. All his long-cherished plans would come to be realized. Rose would be his without further struggle. Life would run smooth, its currents no longer croaking and becoming entangled.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and small dark spots, possibly due to age or handling. A faint horizontal line is visible near the top edge, suggesting a fold or a binding edge. The overall tone is warm and off-white.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME

BEERY, HATTON PLAY FIREMAN AT CALIFORNIA

Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, the imitable comedy team, who have convulsed audiences throughout the world with their antics in "Behind the Front" and "We're in the Navy Now" are back once more in what has been acclaimed the funniest farce of their careers, "Firemen, Save My Child." It comes to the California theatre today for a two day run.

"Firemen, Save My Child" is declared to have hit a new high water mark in laugh films. With the same director, Edward Sutherland and the same scenarist and comedy constructor, Monty Brice, who made the previous Beery-Hatton vehicle, a riot of uninterrupted laughter has been brought to the screen.

This quartet—Hatton, Beery, Sutherland and Brice—who have been aptly termed the "Four Horsemen of Hilarity" began their work together in "Behind the Front." It ripened into a greater success in "We're in the Navy Now." In "Firemen, Save My Child" with all four possessing an understanding of the work of the others, they are said to have attained the heights.

After twice appearing in federal government uniforms Beery and Hatton decided to become municipal in their choice of costume. In the plot of "Firemen, Save My Child" and it's a comedy with a plot, they found an ideal vehicle. So they donned the blue of the fire fighters with the same difficulty in finding uniforms which fit that beset them in the army and navy pictures and find themselves literally catapulted into a series of side-splitting adventures in which they succeed in all but wrecking one town's entire fire-fighting system. However, they prove themselves heroes in spite of everything, involuntary heroes, but heroes nevertheless.

Tom Kennedy, who was their pet monkey in their previous picture again makes life miserable for Beery and Hatton as the fire captain. Joseph Girard, who also appeared in the previous Beery-Hatton farces, is the dignified fire chief. Josephine Dunn, petite, blonde, beautiful graduate of the Paramount Picture school supplies the love interest with Walter Goss, another graduate of the school as the juvenile.

Other features include "Have Courage" a Billy Dooly comedy; "Felix Jack of All Trades"; International News; and Larry Cane at the organ.

SCHOOL FUNDS EQUALIZATION URGED AT MEET

CORONADO, Oct. 6.—C. R. Holbrook, superintendent of San Bernardino schools, addressing county city and district superintendents in convention here today, gave a talk on proposed reapportionment of state school funds to provide greater equalization of taxation for educational purposes. According to Holbrook, one of the chief functions of the state is education to promote equality of opportunity and any funds provided for this purpose should be considered as equalization funds. The amount of money available in any locality for educational purposes will determine the quality of educational output of the locality, he said.

"Taxation for educational and government purposes should be equal," Holbrook stated. "Education as a state function should be supported by all the resources of the state regardless of the place where the child resides."

Walter P. Helms, of Richmond, was also a speaker.

Mrs. Catherine M. Cook, chief of the division of rural education of the United States bureau of education, spoke on the supervision and professional growth of teachers in service, explaining that supervision of faculty members is necessary and that due to limited funds, there has been a lack of competent supervisors. In this respect, Mrs. Cook claims the rural school has been hard hit. Mrs. Cook also advocated a common program to be participated in by teachers, principals and supervisors which she characterized as the keynote of success in school teaching.

It Happened in Brooklyn!

CHICAGO'S REPUTATION as the abode of the toughest gunmen in the world is in danger of being lost to Brooklyn, once called the City of Churches. At first glance you would guess this hefty machine gun was seized in a raid on Windy City gangsters but you're wrong. Detective Fred E. Buckley (above) found the machine gun and 500 shells in a room on an innocent looking butcher shop in Brooklyn, which turned out to be headquarters of one of the most dangerous gangs in the East, proving that the old saw, "Appearance is deceiving," isn't far from wrong.

acterized as the keynote of success in school teaching.

Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, superintendent of the Los Angeles city schools, came out firmly during the meeting for the limiting of conventions to those needed to secure the best educational results. Conventions which aim to contribute to the solving of rural and present problems, those needed by the state office for the discussion of important questions and the ones which enable those gathered together to secure new information, received the endorsement of the Los Angeles school head.

"All conventions should be held at a time and place which will be the least expensive in point of money costs and time costs to schools," Mrs. Dorsey stated. "The state has set a time for all conventions of state wide interest and other necessary conventions should be booked for the same period or for Saturday, as far as is possible."

The convention of county city and district superintendents which has been in session since Monday was scheduled to close this afternoon.

Runyon Holds Pipgras Star Of Yanks' Win Over Pirates

World's Series of 1927 by a score of 6 to 2, giving the American Leaguers a two-game lead over the Pirates.

GIVES 'EM SPEED

Speed he fed 'em, and then more speed, until the batmen of the Pittsburgh club were merely chipping with their sticks at the baseball as it went hurtling past them, fouling it to all corners of Forbes Field.

"Where's this guy been, anyway?" muttered a Pittsburgh fan, astonished. "I ain't never heard of him before. I can't even pronounce his name. It sounds like a spring tonic to me."

Well, George Pipgras has been pretty much of everywhere since he was first with the Yanks in 1923. The croon of the car wheels is a familiar song to his large ears, and he is quite aware that pullman berths were never modeled to men of his proportions.

ALDRIDGE TAKEN OUT

Vic Aldridge, a chunky built, hammered down sort of a man, who was quite a fellow in the Pittsburgh - Washington World's Series of 1925, was on the mound for the Pirates today, but finally his overhand delivery got to drifting around aimlessly, and Donie Bush took him out of there. Mike Ikonos, a name you pronounce with a sneeze, and Joe Dawson, finished up.

A single by Earl Combs, the fast flying Yank outfielder in the third, another single by Mark Koenig, along with an error by Lloyd Waner, the youngest of the phenomenal Waner children, of Oklahoma, tied the count for the Yanks in the third. A sacrifice fly by the redoubtable George Herman (Babe) Ruth, a double by Lou Gehrig, and another sacrifice fly by "Poosh 'em-up" Tony Lazzeri, gave the New Yorkers all the runs they needed.

NOTHING EXCITING

True, they made three more in the eighth, but they might just as well have saved them for Friday in New York. They may need em there. You can see from my synopsis of the scenario as above that there wasn't anything very exciting in the scoring. In fact, unless something nerve-rattling happens in this series pretty soon the several hundred inmates of the press section will be biting their telegraph operators in exasperation. Both the game yesterday, and the one today were devoid of any features calculated to make a fellow get up on his hind legs and shriek, especially a Pittsburgh fellow.

BABE DISAPPOINTS

George Herman (Babe) Ruth didn't astonish the multitude today. The Pittsburgh public is commencing to wonder if George Herman (Babe) Ruth obtained those 60 home runs under false pretenses, or by larceny as balle. He has only given them brief glimpses of apprehension heretofore, whereas they have been looking for nervous prostration every time he steps to the plate.

The Messrs. Jumping Joe Dugan and Walte Hoyt, of the Yankees, arrived at the yard somewhat depressed, because a thief crept into their palatial apartment at a downtown hotel last night and rifled their respective trouser rooms of several yards of money a yard being one hundred dollars.

The red coated band came and let fly several blasts of syncope at the populace from a sitting position in right field while the Pirates and the Yankees were engaged in batting and fielding practice. Mr. George Herman (Babe) Ruth warmed up his throwing arm by penciling autographs for the citizens on programs, and whatnot.

The Beezark of Ker-Blam is the most obliging gent in the matter of autographs that I ever saw. He never seems to tire of writing his name.

Hoaglands Hosts To Friends At Social Evening

Mr. and Mrs. Hoagland entertained a group of friends in their home on Twenty-third street last night. Those enjoying the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brockway, Miss Margaret Selby, William Maloney, Walter McGowan, Don Smith and Conley Cope.

Grantham off the second toss. The crowd numbed as Ruth marched to the plate. Nallin called the first pitch to Babe a strike. The second was a ball, the third a foul dribble down the first base line.

"Nobody up," bawled the man with large voice who was again on duty in the upper tier of the stand above the sunken garden in which sat the members of the well-known fourth estate.

So it seemed, Babe dislocated his vertebrae swinging at the

The clean fuel for the home

We "launder" the Gas before you get it
It comes to you clean

The gas used in your home for cooking, water heating and house heating is delivered to you clean.

Right after gas is made it passes through large "scrubbing" tanks. Then it goes through purifiers. Only pure gas that burns clean passes into the pipes that lead to your home.

That is why gas is a clean fuel.

And gas is all fuel. When you want heat, it is instantly ready—to burn gently for a second or two or to burn vigorously for hours.

Because gas is so clean and convenient a gas range, gas water heater or a gas-fired furnace saves your time and effort.

FANS THRILLED BY CLOSE RACE IN CITY POOL

Richmond's crack Junior girls' team won the dual meet last night from Neptune in the municipal natatorium here, by a score of 41 to 27.

The spectators were furnished with plenty of thrills as the Juniors fought for supremacy in the various events staged. In the 100-yard back stroke third place was bitterly fought for by Frances Pericone and the Neptune entry. They were neck and neck for five laps and Frances Pericone finally nosed ahead for the place.

In the 220-yard free style, Alice Bagley of Richmond and Lois Hadwick of Neptune fought for second place for ten laps and in the eleventh Alice Bagley forged ahead for second place with Lois Hadwick taking third.

There were exhibition events staged for the benefit of the spectators. Frank Mello, of Honolulu, with a handicap of seven inches beat like Kelpio in a 100-yard race. Lillian Gillman, the 14-year-old star of Neptune who broke the 220-yard back-stroke record, gave an exhibition.

The events were as follows: 50-YARD FREE STYLE—Phyllis Jones (N) first, Alice Bagley (R) second and Irene Cover (R) third. Time 34 3-5 seconds.

100-YARD FREE STYLE—Frances Pericone (R) first, Lillian Jones (N) second and Leona Johnston (R) third. Time one min. 15 seconds.

HARRIS SURE YANKEES WIN WORLD SERIES

Outfielder For Yankees

PITTSBURG, Oct. 6.—Well, nobody can say that luck was the factor that enabled us to another and seemed cheerful about it—but not for long. We broke through their defense in the third and cinched the battle then and there.

"A good ball club—that Pirate crew. But none of us thought at the outset of the series that it was good enough to win this championship with 2 victories for us. It starts—well, we are surprised confident now.

transformed a pair of the Pirates into something like deuces, and now, we have the confidence that comes with two straight victories in a world series battle.

With the whole team back in a hitting mood, with the pitchers going great, with the old team spirit fanned into an enthusiastic flame and with the knowledge that we're New York bound with the home town fans to cheer and help us—well, we feel great.

The Pirates fought us as best they could this afternoon, but for them it was a losing battle. They jumped away to a one run lead and seemed cheerful about it—but not for long. We broke through their defense in the third and cinched the battle then and there.

"A good ball club—that Pirate crew. But none of us thought at the outset of the series that it was good enough to win this championship with 2 victories for us. It starts—well, we are surprised confident now.

"Four straight and nothing else." We've beaten Kremer and we whipped Aldridge. In two days we next pitch and the crowd howled in glee. Babe looked greatly disgusted. Gehrig got his base on balls, which produced long Bob Meusel at bat. The crowd grumbled at Nallin's judgment of balls and strikes.

Meusel tapped to Aldridge for an easy out.

With two strikes and a ball called on him, Lloyd Waner tripled to deep left off George Pipgras to start the Pirates' part of the first inning. The crowd erupted a huge yell. Meusel scrambled hotly after the ball and his throw to Duncan made the play at third fairly close.

Barnhart fouled off one pitch, then took a strike that was a corker, splitting the very heart of the saucer. He fouled off another. Then drove a long fly to Ruth, Lloyd Waner scoring easily after the catch.

This put the crowd in a very pleasant mood, indeed. Paul Waner had two strikes and a ball on him and the next pitch seemed over, but Nallin said "ball" and Benny Bengough, the small catcher of the Yank's, complained. Paul fouled off two more tosses, took another ball, making it three and then called out on a pitch he let pass.

Glenn Wright hit a high fly to Ruth.

In the Yank's second, Tony Lazzeri beat out an infield hit that glanced off Aldridge's glove, and Dugan and Bengough both fouled out to Hoochman Gooch, the Pirate backstopper. Pipgras got a count of three and two and then lined to Grantham.

It was a slow beginning, for all Pipgras and Aldridge are fast ball pitchers. Aldridge is a short, stocky built fellow, who pitches overhanded, while Pipgras takes a wind-up that carries from his heels to his head. He swings half way round before delivering the ball in a manner reminiscent of Alexander, the great, and all the pitchers schooled by Charley Dooin, in the days when Charley managed the Phillies.

After Traynor had gone out, Pipgras to Gehrig, Grantham dropped a hit in short center in the Pirates' side of the second. It was too far back of second for Koenig to get it, and not far enough for Coombs to collect.

Grantham took second as Harris grounded out to Gehrig on a hit and run play. Gooch fouled out to Bengough.

Coombs had three balls and two strikes on him in the Yank's third when he singled to right, the ball skipping, past Grantham's outstretched arm. It was to first time Coombs had been on base. Koenig smased a ball across second, the drive cutting the dust under Grantham as he fell grabbing for it, and going out into center where Lloyd Waner gave it a good fumble. Coombs raced home from first and Koenig got to third before Lloyd could recover the ball.

Aldridge pitched with great ease to Ruth, his first two tosses being called balls. He was trying to keep the next one away from the plate but Ruth reached out and caught the ball on the end of his bat, lifting a fly as high as the flag pole in centerfield to Lloyd Waner. Koenig scored after the catch. Lou Gehrig got a good hold on an over-hand throw from Aldridge and doubled to right center. The crowd commenced laughing rather sardonically. Long Meusel hit to Wright. The momentum of the drive carrying Glenn too far back for a throw, and nobody was put out. It was a corking stop.

With Gehrig on third and Meusel on first, "Pooch 'em Up" Tony Lazzeri knocked a fly to Paul Waner and Gehrig hustled home, after the catch. Waner threw for the plate, and Meusel moved on to second under the heave. Dugan raised a fly to Paul Waner.

AILMENTS OF THE HEART QUICKLY RELIEVED

Tail, Calif. April 19, 1927, Fong Wan Herb Co., Oakland, Calif.

Gentlemen, I suffered from leakage of the heart, enlargement, high blood pressure. The pain extended to my back and left arm. I tried many good physicians, but found no relief at all.

After I had seen your advertisement about overcoming heart trouble I decided to write to you for herbs. Your herb treatment is indeed wonderful. When I had finished taking a four-week supply of the herbs, all my pain had left me.

You deserve unstinted praise for what you have done for me. I shall continue to take the herbs until I am certain that I have completely recovered and am sound and healthy in every respect.

Yours very truly,

Police Scout Murder Clues In Finding Of Floating Body

Theory of murder in the finding of the body of an unidentified man in the bay near Point Costa Wednesday night, was dispelled yesterday when Deputy Sheriff Dike Joslin and J. M. Joseph, after viewing the remains, expressed belief that the man had been a suicide and that he had bound his hands and feet himself. This belief was aroused by the fact that the hands were loosely tied and over one hand there was a double slip knot. The remains are being held by Deputy Coroner Jack Connolly.

The man was apparently about 58 years of age and of stocky build. There was nothing in his clothing nor any marks on them that might aid in identification. It was estimated that the body had been in the water about six days.

It is presumed that churning of the bay waters by the Southern Pacific ferry boats brought the body to the surface. It was sighted by William Noman of Benicia and F. H. Thompson of Oakland, ferry employees. Hauled ashore it was turned over to the custody of Connolly.

The man weighed about 170 pounds and was five feet, four inches in height. There is a small scar over the left eye. There was about a week's growth of beard and slight mustache. The eyes were blue. Teeth in the upper jaw are nearly gone while those in the lower jaw are nearly intact. The body lacked hat and coat and was attired in a blue vest, heavy shirt, trade mark 70W, and striped grey trousers and tan shoes. A cheap watch and a padlock key were found in the clothing.

A close examination of the body failed to reveal any marks of violence.
